Seine-et-Marne, the new journey!

Just one hour from Paris,
Seine-et-Marne offers a rare luxury: the chance to relax and recharge without travelling far.
With its nature, historic castles, rivers and peaceful villages, the region is perfect for a short escape alongside a visit to Paris. Here, travellers can slow down, enjoy simple pleasures and experience authentic, local life.

Today's visitors are looking for meaningful trips, not long distances.
Short, rich stays close to home are increasingly popular.
Seine-et-Marne offers just that — micro-adventures on bike or by canoe, nights in unusual accommodations like tiny houses or family-run guesthouses, and moments of calm in nature.

The region's strength lies in its mix of preserved landscapes, passionate local producers and creative tourism initiatives.
Seine-et-Marne Attractivité helps professionals develop new experiences and welcome visitors in fresh ways.

This press kit showcases the diversity and charm of Seine-et-Marne — a destination for a day, a weekend, or simply to reconnect with what matters most.

FONTAINEBLEAU FOREST

AN 'EXCEPTIONAL FOREST' COVERING 62,000 ACRES.

Long ago known as Bière Forest, Fontainebleau Forest today constitutes the vastest natural space in all of Île-de-France.

A UNESCO Biosphere Reserve, the forest is world-renowned amongst rock climbers for its exceptional bouldering, as well as attracting hikers, bikers, horse riders, and other outdoor enthusiasts.

No one way to discover the forest!

> By foot! No less than 500 kilometres of marked trails

> Biking the 'FB', the greenway linking Fontainebleau and Barbizon

A phantom (and secret) stop in the heart of Fontainebleau Forest

A stop largely unknown to the general public, for absent from the R line plan. Here's what you need to know: the train stops only on Saturdays, Sundays and holidays, at 8:16 and 9:16 AM, and only in the direction from Paris Gare de Lyon to Montargis.

If you'd like to attempt the adventure, plan on a hike or a bike to hop on a returning Paris-bound train, at either the Fontainebleau/Avon or Bois-le-Roi railway station!

A DIVERSE ECOSYSTEM

5,685 species of plants

675 types of lichen

60 species of mammals

460 types of mosses

500 types of algae

200 species of birds

2,700 species of mushrooms

6,600 species of animals

5,600 species of insects

PROPER PRACTICES FOR THE FOREST

- No trash bins are found in the forest, so be sure to bring your picnic trash back out with you.
- Fire is the forest's worst enemy! For obvious reasons, ban all barbecues, cigarettes and campfires.
- Pets must be kept under control at all times, all year long!
- Pick and gather with moderation! Flowers, mushrooms and dead wood can only be carried out in limited quantities for one's own personal use.
- The use of motorised vehicles is supervised within the forest. Avoid 4x4, quad or motorbike outings, which bother walkers, animals and plants, and deteriorate the paths.
- Avoid adventuring beyond the forest footpaths. Stepping off the trail accelerates the erosion of fragile areas and damages the forest's undergrowth and seedlings.

SEINE-ET-MARNE's ANIMALS

UNDERSTANDING NATURE to BETTER PROTECT IT

UNDERSTANDING NATURE IS ESSENTIAL FOR ITS PRESERVATION.

To protect biodiversity, it is necessary to comprehend the specific needs of fragile species and ecosystems.

Animal parks play an important role in this mission, by maintaining environments in which researchers and caretakers can study the behaviours and needs of rare species.

THE ATTILLY WOOD ZOO

Giraffes and lions, bears and bison... Quite a change from the deer and boar, the foxes and rabbits one so often sees in Seine-et-Marne! The exceptional Bois d'Attilly Zoo is home to some 500 wild animals from all four corners of the world, representing some 100 species of mammals and birds.

The discovery trail explores four thematic areas, where the zoo's diverse species live together in harmony. The miniature farm shelters gentle donkeys and dwarf goats, mischievous alpacas and amusing black-headed sheep from far-off Somalia. Ever a hit with children! Teenagers prefer the thrilling tigers and Andean condors, the panthers and hyenas...

This educational zoo helps raise awareness of the need to respect and protect nature and its rich biodiversity, as well as tackling essential issues of environmental protection, all while helping to preserve threatened species. In the springtime, the many births are sure to soften even the hardest of hearts!

New in 2026: an interactive aviary with lorikeets!

LUMIGNY SAFARI RESERVE

A peaceful haven for 160 felines roaming free within a 71-hectare (175-acre) nature reserve. Stroll down the shady lanes of this park to discover four natural worlds: Europe, Africa, Asia and the Americas, home to servals, cheetahs, black panthers, white lions, jaguars and many more wild cats, not to mention some sixty lemurs living freely upon their own spacious island welcoming visitors!

The spaces are designed to favour encounters without disturbing the animals, via panoramic viewpoints, observatories, plate-glass windows, footbridges, etc.

New in 2026: the Asian Garden : red pandas and Asian small-clawed otters can be observed along a walkway inspired by the Middle Kingdom.

The American Plains : bison and black bears roam below a 170-metre elevated walkway, rising 3 metres above a vast 4-hectare plain.

102 PROTECTED NATURE RESERVES

Seine-et-Marne is home to 102 fragile nature reserves (ENS). An ENS is a site recognised for its ecological and scenic qualities, whose preservation is necessary to guarantee the perennity of the department's rich natural heritage. To this end, Seine-et-Marne purchases and maintains these natural areas, rendering them accessible to the general public.

Each site stands out for its history, its particular characteristics, its cultural, architectural, athletic and/or recreational wealth. Indeed, if you're sporty, a lover of history or a keen observer of nature, you'll enjoy exploring every one of Seine-et-Marne's natural areas.

Take the opportunity to discover them!

PARROT WORLD

Passionate about parrots, Eric Vignot created the Parrot Wildlife Foundation. Well aware of the difficulties of recreating the proper conditions for these birds' reproduction, the committed philanthropist set out to construct a new generation animal park: Parrot World. An immense 10,000-sqm aviary allows hundreds of parrots and other birds to freely fly about, while a river is home to giant river otters, capybaras and jaguars. There's also a 2,000-sqm farm-animal petting enclosure, a giant playground, and an overlook onto the penguin pool.

New in 2026: opening of the PWLF Refuge, a sanctuary for rescued parrots, and the arrival of tegus — impressive South American lizards — in a specially designed, immersive aviary.

SPORTS and RECREATION PARKS

9 Seine-et-Marne sports and recreation parks improve the department's quality of life while helping to preserve its natural environment, for a plethora of recreational activities.

Soak in the sun on your beach towel, explore the trails by foot, by bike or on horseback, or opt for one of many outdoor sports on offer: golf, rock climbing, mountain biking, sailing, cable skiing, surfing, treetop adventuring, etc. Discover the department's exceptional recreation parks in Bois-le-Roi (between the Seine and the forest), Jablines-Annet (the loveliest beach in Île-de-France), Saint-Fargeau-Ponthierry (a haven in the heart of nature), Souppes-sur-Loing (awarded the 'Blue Flag' quality label, in the Loing River Valley), Vaires-sur-Marne / Torcy (an Olympic nautical centre), Buthiers (sylvan escapades), La Grande Paroisse (paradise for windsurfers), Saint-Rémy-la-Vanne (family fun and relaxation) and Varennes-sur-Seine (on the banks of the Seine).

INCREDIBLE GARDENS

LUXURIANT PARKS AND SUPERB ENGLISH- AND FRENCH-STYLE GARDENS DELIGHT WALKERS IN SEARCH OF HARMONY AND AESTHETICISM.

Throughout the seasons, these natural settings present fabulous canvasses of mosaiculture. Every visit is a new vegetal voyage!

THE PROVINS ROSE GARDEN

'Mignonne allons voir si la rose...'

Legend has it that the Count of Champagne, Thibaud IV, brought the Rosa Gallica Officinalis back from the Crusades in the year 1240. Today, the town's floral symbol is an integral part of its historic heritage. The rose garden, covering 3.5 hectares (7.5 acres), is home to nearly 1,500 rose bushes and no less than 450 different varieties arranged by theme, not to mention a quaint tearoom selling rose-flavoured delicacies.

...Majestic

THE GARDENS of FONTAINEBLEAU

The English landscape garden was begun in 1812, when Napoleon Bonaparte commissioned the palace architect to create a 'picturesque park'. An artificial river and winding pathways constantly present new points of view. A pool marks the location of the legendary 'Belle Eau' spring. The 'Garden of Diana' is designed around the Fontaine de Diane, while the neoclassical statue of Diana from Marly dates from 1684. André Le Nôtre's classic Grand Parterre (1660-1664), with its 14 hectares (35 acres) of French formal gardens, extends beyond the Bassin des Cascades to form a long park through which flows the Henri IV Grand Canal. For a romantic touch, opt for a boat ride about the 'Carp Pool'.

THE GARDENS of CHAMPS-SUR-MARNE

The gardens of the Champs-sur-Marne estate cover 85 hectares of natural beauty. They feature French-style avenues as well as wooded areas and meadows inspired by the English garden tradition. Now classified as a 'Jardin Remarquable,' they were redesigned by the renowned landscape architects, the Duchêne, in the early 20th century. The impressive perspective stretching from the château down to the banks of the Marne is punctuated by ponds, sculptures, and the sumptuous embroidery-like patterns of the flowerbeds. A floral square in front of the Orangerie and a walled vegetable garden complete the visit.

THE GARDEN of VAUX-LE-VICOMTE

Vaux-le-Vicomte's vast garden is designed around a perspective of over three kilometres, a beautiful innovation by André Le Nôtre. This earliest example of the French formal garden comprises three successive terraces adorned with parterres and smaller gardens running along either side of the central pathway, prolonged by a perspective terminating with an imposing statue of Hercules. Statues and pools punctuate the park's perfect symmetry. However, this perfect vision is but illusory, thanks to the genius of Le Nôtre, for as strollers delve ever deeper into the park, they happen upon one surprise after another: subtle dissymmetries appear, and certain statues reveal themselves to be rough concretions of stone and cement. By artistically staging the château within its verdant setting of 33 hectares (81.5 acres) in the heart of nature, André Le Nôtre and Louis le Vau composed the 17th century's most perfect marriage of architecture and landscaping.

THE GARDEN of THE BOURDELLE DEPARTMENTAL MUSEUM

ÉGREVILLE

A verdant setting created by Michel Dufet to magnify the oeuvre of his father-in-law, Antoine Bourdelle. The 7,000-sqm garden is home to 58 bronze silhouettes by Bourdelle, the majestic statues seemingly cut up by the shadows of their protective vegetation. Be sure to admire the famous Héraklès, Bourdelle's proud archer. Here, nature sublimates art.

Fontainebleau climbing: more than a sport, a way of life!

Strolling through royal splendour

Following the peaceful river Seine, to the rhythm of the barges...

GREEN STAY IDEAS

Seine-et-Marne reveals itself to be a multifaceted and fascinating land of adventures. Between the age-old trees, the winding footpaths and the fun boulders of Fontainebleau Forest, each step leads you to a new natural history. Then, cruising a tranquil waterway, seduction plays its part in a fluvial and gastronomic experience. From the peaceful woods to the titillation of tastebuds, each moment promises an unforgettable immersion in the heart of the department's exceptional nature, heritage and culinary culture.

stay 1

Nature, culture... and no car

SATURDAY

Château, climbing & guinguette vibes

Just 43 minutes from Paris Gare de Lyon , head to Fontainebleau and its surroundings for a car-free weekend... but far from emotion-free.

- First stop: the Château de Fontainebleau, majestic and steeped in history, home to around forty kings from the 12th to the 19th century. Perfect for a romantic stroll through the gardens, royal apartments, and even a row on the carp pond.

- After a light lunch in town, rent bikes and ride to Barbizon along the "FB" route. Winding paths through forest and trails set the tone for adventure. On arrival, try climbing on the area's legendary boulders — challenges, laughs, and a feeling of being little adventurers.

Take a sweet break at La Juxtaposition tea salon, with its cosy, artist-inspired vibe, before cycling back to Fontainebleau at a relaxed pace.

In the evening, head to L'Éphémère bar: lanterns, music, cocktails, and views of the château — the perfect setting for a cosy evening. Overnight stay in a central hotel, just steps from the royal residence.

SUNDAY

Samois, poetry & tasty treats

- Start the morning at the Fontainebleau Market, recognised as a "Marché d'exception". Sample Brie de Melun, fresh bread from Dardonville bakery, and finish with a Fontainebleau dessert topped with red fruit coulis. Full bags, happy hearts.

Back on your bikes, head to Samois-sur-Seine, a picturesque village lined with Belle Époque villas known as the "Affolantes".

- Enjoy a romantic picnic on the Presqu'île du Berceau, under the watchful eye of Django Reinhardt's statue. Fans of the legendary gypsy guitarist can admire his house, his favourite café (now Chez Démé restaurant), or even see the cemetery.

- In the afternoon, continue to Vulaines-sur-Seine to explore the Mallarmé House-Museum, a peaceful and poetic retreat.

Final gourmet stop at Frédéric Cassel in Fontainebleau before taking the train back — legs a little tired, but spirits fully recharged.

Exploring Samois to the Tune of "Minor Swing"

Feel the soul of the "École de Barbizon" artists

Saint-Étienne Cathedral,
The little Sister of 'Notre-Dame'

Boat on the water

stay 2

Brie de Meaux cheese and feet in the water

SATURDAY

Local Flavours & French Cinema

- Start your day at the Maison du Brie de Meaux, discovering the "king of cheeses." Families will love the Little Cheesemaker workshop, where children from 5 years old make their first fresh cheese and take home their proud creation.

- Lunch at Le Parvis restaurant offers views of Saint-Étienne Cathedral, often called the "little sister" of Notre-Dame.

In the afternoon, visit the Domaine de Monthyon, a site labelled "Maison des Illustres". Rich in history, it immerses visitors in the world of Jean-Claude Brialy, which hosted numerous figures from French cinema and music. Icons such as Romy Schneider, Claudia Cardinale, Isabelle Adjani, and François Truffaut walked these halls. Today, the estate is open to the public for a glimpse into the charm and intimacy of French cinema. Visits are very popular and must be booked well in advance.

- Overnight stay aboard the Spicy, a 1924 former patrol boat converted into unique accommodation, moored at the Meaux river stop — an original and unforgettable experience between barge and motorboat.

SUNDAY

Marne river, cycling & remembrance

- In the morning, cycling enthusiasts can borrow bikes for free near the Tourist Office via the VELMO app. The "Brie & Battlefields" loop (21 km) reveals Brie landscapes, local specialties, and the history of World War I, at a relaxed or brisk pace depending on your mood.

- In the afternoon, head to the Marne River for a ride on an electric boat, no licence needed, with "Marin d'Eau Douce." Children and adults alike can take the helm and explore the peaceful riverbanks at their own pace.

The weekend ends with the lingering taste of Brie de Meaux cheese and memories of a unique escape, blending nature, gastronomy, and heritage.

*Bikes are also available at "Plage de Meaux" during the summer.

FONTAINEBLEAU PALACE,
A UNESCO WORLD HERITAGE SITE

This vast edifice is not only famous for its having played an integral role in the imperial adventure of Napoleon Bonaparte. It's also a château relating the history of France's greatest monarchs, allowing visitors to stroll through European history as well as about its beautiful park and gardens. From King Philip II in the 12th century to Napoleon II in the 19th century, some forty sovereigns left their indelible mark upon the palace. King Francis I gave the château its Renaissance form, while Napoleon Bonaparte lent Fontainebleau its lasting legend. A synthesis of French architectural styles, the residence of 1,500 rooms (100 of which welcome visitors) offers a fascinating tour of French splendour.

VAUX-LE-VICOMTE

THE CHÂTEAU THAT INSPIRED VERSAILLES

With its remarkable architecture, its extraordinary décors, and its singular garden, Vaux-le-Vicomte was born of the determined desire of its founder, Nicolas Fouquet, and the genius of his three commissioned artists: the architect Louis Le Vau, the painter-sculptor Charles Le Brun, and the landscape gardener André Le Nôtre.

The three masters, sternly supervised by Fouquet, combined their exceptional expertise to create one of the greatest masterpieces of the 17th century. On 17 August 1661, a mere five years after construction of the château had begun, Nicolas Fouquet hosted its inauguration in the presence of King Louis XIV, under whom he served as Superintendent of Finances.

Though the party was grandiose, the French sovereign would not stay to sleep in the 'King's Chamber', instead preferring his own palace at Fontainebleau... 19 days later, Fouquet would be arrested, on suspicion of treason, and would remain in prison for the rest of his days. However, the disgrace of their patron did not prove harmful to the careers of Le Brun, Le Vau and Le Nôtre. Indeed, they would subsequently be hired by Louis XIV to build the Sun King's spectacular new palace at Versailles.

The CHÂTEAU DE CHAMPS-SUR-MARNE

THE BELLE ÉPOQUE

Built upon a loop of the Marne River in the early 18th century, the Château de Champs-sur-Marne is a perfect example of the pleasure home. Successively the property of the Princess of Conti, the Duke of La Vallière and the Marquess of Pompadour, the Champs château hosted such famous guests as Diderot, d'Alembert and Voltaire. Echoing the grand townhouses of the Marais district of Paris under Louis XV, the estate owes its great fame to the Marquise de Pompadour.

The château dates back to 1706, when the wealthy financier Poisson de Bourvallais built his sumptuous residence upon the foundations of an old castle. Following his fall, the estate passed to the family of the Princess of Conti. In 1757, Madame de Pompadour, the famous favourite mistress of Louis XV, rented and renovated the château at great expense. The estate would subsequently pass from owner to owner, before being finally brought back to life in the 19th century by Count Cahen d'Anvers.

In 1935, the château became an official residence of the President of the French Republic, welcoming foreign heads of state during their official visits to France. Today listed as a national estate and a historic monument, Champs-sur-Marne has managed to preserve its particular atmosphere combining a love of art, a vivacious life of the mind, and an appetite for more worldly pleasures.

la MEDIEVAL TOWN OF PROVINS

JOURNEY BACK IN TIME

An old Champagne market town, Provins has managed to preserve its stone and half-timbered houses built atop superb vaulted cellars. Its 25-metre-high rampart walls and fortified gateways still encircle the town and have been recently restored. Thanks to this exceptional architectural heritage, Provins was named a UNESCO World Heritage Site in 2001. The upper town is a wonderful illustration of medieval construction, while the ancient subterranean passageways – some of which welcome visitors – retain their mysteries regarding their utilisation throughout the centuries. The elaborate religious edifices testify to the fervour and wealth of the Counts of Champagne.

Today, Provins offers numerous events, activities and tours to immerse visitors in the 12th century, the golden age of this market town.

BLANDY-LES-TOURS

A FORTRESS IN A CHARMING VILLAGE

This spectacular castle is a rare example of 14th-century military architecture. Recently renovated, the ensemble is dominated by an impressive keep rising 35 metres and offering an exceptional panoramic view of the surrounding area. Ringed by crenelated battlements and punctuated with towers, the late-medieval fortress can only be accessed via the old drawbridge.

The castle dates back to the Hundred Years' War, when it was built to protect the royal domain. Having miraculously survived the conflict for which it had been constructed, the edifice would only suffer much later the ravages of time. In the 18th century, Blandy-les-Tours belonged to the vast domain of Vaux-le-Vicomte, whose new owner, the Maréchal de Villard, had the framework of the outbuildings restored by dismantling the castle, leaving only an imposing ruin that was later acquired by the municipality in the 19th century. In 1992, the Seine-et-Marne department in turn purchased the estate and has since commissioned several stages of restoration work, along with archaeological digs.

INSPIRATION

MUSÉE DÉPARTEMENTAL DES PEINTRES
BARBIZON

This museum comprises two historic sites: the Ganne Inn, where many artists stayed between the 1820s and the 1860s, and the house-studio of Théodore Rousseau. Since 1995, the Ganne Inn has housed the museum's permanent collection.

The collection consists of both the decorations created on the furniture and walls of the building by the painters who stayed there, as well as a collection of paintings, drawings, and prints by Camille Corot, Jean-François Millet, Théodore Rousseau, and Narcisse Diaz de la Peña.

Throughout the year, the museum offers conferences, plein air sketching workshops, and printmaking sessions.

CULTURE

LE CHÂTEAU-MUSÉE
NEMOURS

Set on the left bank of the Loing River, in the heart of the former medieval town of Nemours, this 12th-century castle is one of the very few urban castles in the Île-de-France region to have survived to this day.

Now home to a museum, it boasts a rich collection with a strong focus on fine arts. The castle-museum also hosts two temporary exhibitions each year, showcasing highlights from its collections.

the MOULIN JAUNE

The 'Yellow Mill' is the residence and creative laboratory of the renowned Russian clown Slava Polunin. Created in 2001 by the founder of 'Slava's Snowshow' as a way of living his life as a veritable work of art, the Moulin Jaune is home to several thematic gardens serving as stages for artistic performances. This 'Remarkable Garden' is also home to the 'Academy of Fools'. An oneiric park combining nature, creation and everyday life. Ever changing, the 4-hectare (10-acre) haven reveals a world at once real and marvellous, a subtle blend of art brut, science fiction and Felliniesque circus.

Occasional openings of the garden with creative picnics, lively music, joyful characters, unexpected scenes, immersive walks, and of course, a colorful dress code!

2026 Calendar (subject to change):
18 and 19 April / 16 and 17 May / 6 and 7 June / 27 and 28 June / 18 and 19 July / 29 and 30 August / 19 and 20 September / 10 and 11 October 2026

Guided tours of the garden, discovering the stories from the creation lab, lasting 1.5 hours – available in French, English, or Russian.

By reservation only.

> the world's greatest clown

SLAVA POLUNIN

Despite his dilettante airs, this world-renowned clown is a fierce worker, striving first and foremost to chase down his dreams and so attain absolute freedom.

At the age of 11, Slava discovered Charlie Chaplin in The Kid, which proved a revelation! He thenceforth knew exactly what he wanted to do. A few years later, he began learning the art of pantomime. Assissiaï, his clown persona in his signature yellow costume with red shoes, subtly combines the characteristics of his three great masters: the fabulous Soviet clown Enguibarov, the philosophical mime Marceau, and the moving comedian Chaplin. He subsequently gave birth to the project of a theatre home to wonderfully disparate clowns; that kaleidoscope of characters was embodied by the Polunin Troupe, which became extremely popular. Following its break up twenty years later, Polunin turned his attention to tragicomedy, seeking to reconcile the grotesque and the epic, and so 'bring the clown back to the theatre'. This led to a series of projects, with notably the 'Mime Parade' gathering together in Leningrad over eight hundred clowns from all over the Soviet Union, followed by a first street theatre festival and a 'National Congress of Fools'.

The 'Caravan of Peace', a travelling theatre, crisscrossed Europe, from Moscow to Paris. The 'Academy of Fools' sought to resuscitate the concept of the carnival and gave birth to the 'Ship of Fools' gathering together the world's most talented clowns, not to mention the legendary 'Snowshow', a marvellous snowstorm swirling about the world and carrying away circus enthusiasts of all ages.

GALLERIA CONTINUA

Astonishment! Such is the overriding feeling upon discovering Galleria Continua / Les Moulins, near Boissy-le-Châtel, an international art gallery belonging to an ensemble of renowned sites in Italy, China, Brazil, Cuba and elsewhere.

Occupying a former paper factory once supplying the chic stationery shops of Paris, Galleria Continua takes advantage of its spectacularly spacious spaces to present monumental artworks. Here, contemporary creation questions, moves, disconcerts, shocks.

Each exhibition space serves a separate function, thus enjoying its own architectural and spatial identity. Galleria Continua hosts in situ projects by such international artists as Etel Adnan, Kader Attia, Daniel Buren, Subodh Gupta, Anish Kapoor, Kiki Smith, and many more.

From season to season, stop by to contemplate monumental creations by artists from all four corners of the world.

the RENTILLY CULTURAL PARK - MICHEL CHARTIER

A CONTEMPORARY ART CENTRE IN AN ARTWORK

Michel Chartier raised eyebrows this year by transforming his château into a contemporary art centre.

You're sure to be dazzled by this astonishing architecture with its reflective facades, a magical second skin of mirrors. More than a simple restoration, the work by Xavier Veilhan, in collaboration with the architects Bona and Lemercier and the scenographer Alexis Bertrand, immerses the château within the landscape of its park. Inside, two levels covering 500 sqm host a variety of temporary exhibitions all year long.

Four free festivals punctuate the centre's calendar:

'Frisson Baroque' (28 January to 1st February), dedicated to Baroque arts.

'PrinTemps de Paroles' (19 to 24 May), celebrating street arts, dance, theatre, circus and music.

Piano Si, Piano Là (24 to 28 June 2026), a series of recitals and concerts appealing to both newcomers and seasoned music lovers.

'Automne Jazz' (7 to 12 October), lending jazz centre stage.

BEES AND HONEY
LAGNY-SUR-MARNE

The boutique 'Abeilles et Miel' is two brothers, Nicolas and Rémi, who in 2012 set up their beehives in Seine-et-Marne, in Paris at the foot of the Tour Montparnasse, and elsewhere in France where they wander. Honey-flavoured sweets and beer, honey soaps, bees' wax and candles all await discovery in their shop, not to mention a great variety of artisanal honeys.

THEIR LITTLE EXTRA: Ever keen to raise environmental awareness, Rémi and Nicolas offer businesses the opportunity to rent one or more of their hives and so join a collective (and delicious) project! They also host educational initiations, to share their passion for and introduce others to the fascinating world of bees, including beekeeping and tastings of their honey-based products. A true delight for epicureans in search of new natural flavours and fragrances.

LA BRÛLERIE DE MEAUX
MEAUX

Since 1978, La Brûlerie de Meaux has carried on a family tradition of artisanal coffee roasting, now in the hands of the third generation. For Frédéric, the house barista, roasting coffee is an "art of patience and precision", requiring skill and sensitivity. With 45 different varieties, the Brûlerie is a place for advice and discovery, where visitors can indulge in exceptional Arabicas such as Colombian Geisha or Kopi Luwak.

THE LITTLE EXTRA: Sometimes visitors leave the shop with their coffee or tea — the one that matches their personality, like a personal aromatic signature.

Delights and delicacies

Seine-et-Marne's towns and cities are well-known for their culinary specialities, notably the world-famous Brie de Meaux cheese and its fragrant neighbour, the Brie de Melun, both awarded protected designations of origin (PDOs). But there's also Provins, famous for its rose-flavoured sweets, and Fontainebleau for its cheesy eponymous dessert... As for the department's many farms, their fresh local produce deliciously contribute to Seine-et-Marne's well-deserved reputation for quality gastronomy.

SAY CHEESE(S)!

SEINE-ET-MARNE IS FAMOUS FOR ITS BRIE CHEESES... BUT NOT ONLY! CREAMY, MOUSSY, UNCTUOUS... taste them all!

THE BRIES OF SEINE-ET-MARNE

Seine-et-Marne is inseparable from its Bries! There exist several varieties, whose names evoke the department's cities: Meaux (PDO), Melun (PDO), Provins, Coulommiers, Montereau, Nangis... These soft cow's-milk cheeses with their flowery rinds were a flavourful favourite of Charlemagne's, and remain an essential component of any self-respecting cheese platter.

BRIE DE MELUN
"MELUN FÊTE SON BRIE"

> Celebrate Brie cheese over one weekend in October 2026.

Considered the ancestor of all Bries, the Brie de Melun has enjoyed its own PDO since 1980. Its flavour stands out from the other Bries for being particularly pronounced. It's generally savoured at the end of a meal, and best accompanied by a solid yet elegant red wine, such as a Gaillac, Burgundy, Côtes du Rhône or Saint-Nicolas-de-Bourgueil.

COULOMMIERS
FOIRE INTERNATIONALE AUX FROMAGES ET AUX VINS

> 27 to 30 March 2026

Coulommiers, also known as Brie petit moule ('small disc Brie'), was first created to solve the delivery worries engendered by the larger Bries. To be savoured at any time of day, Coulommiers is best accompanied by a light red or a dry white wine such as a Petit Chablis.

BRIE DE MEAUX
BRIE HAPPY

> 10 and 11 October 2026

The so-called 'King of Cheeses', Brie de Meaux has enjoyed its own PDO since 1980 and is produced in the region stretching from the Brie plains all the way to the mighty Meuse. Named after the territory of Brie and the town of Meaux, Brie de Meaux is well-balanced, at once mild and wonderfully aromatic. Often savoured at the end of a meal, this Brie is also an essential ingredient in several regional dishes.
Best accompanied by a fruity red wine, such as a Saint-Estèphe, Côte de Beaune or Beaujolais.

FONTAINEBLEAU

Fontainebleau – also known as Bellifontain or Crémet – is a famous voluptuous mousse created in the town of the same name. However, the recipe was never officialised and still retains a few mysteries. This fromage frais of cow's milk and whipped cream is thought to have been born in the late 18th century in an old milk depository. Savoury and unctuous, it lends freshness and lightness to starters, quiches, veloutés, etc. Beloved by numerous chefs, Fontainebleau can also be enjoyed as a dessert, either plain or with icing sugar, syrup or coulis.

FOCUS ON THE 'MAISON DU BRIE DE MEAUX'

MEAUX

Reconstructions and staged exhibitions will allow you to explore the history of this renowned cheese. Discover the various stages of its manufacture, from collecting the milk to ageing in the cellar. You'll also comprehend the current challenges facing this artisanal PDO cheese, proudly represented by its 'Brie de Meaux Brotherhood'. All year long, this culinary cultural centre hosts activities for cheese-curious visitors, with workshops, tastings, exhibitions, guided tours for all ages, etc.

MEAUX MUSTARD

MEAUX

Manufacturers of mustard have been present in Meaux ever since the 18th century, notably J.B. Pommery. In 1760, a dignitary of the Meaux chapter house shared with the manufacturer its secret recipe for this one-of-a-kind condiment, proudly present upon the French royal table since 1632! Meaux mustard comprises ground seeds of the Sinapis nigra mixed with water, vinegar, herbs and spices.

Roll up your (children's) sleeves for the 'Little Mustard-Maker' workshop at the Maison du Brie de Meaux!

BARLEY SUGARS

MORET-SUR-LOING

Created in 1638 by Benedictine nuns during the reign of King Louis XIII, barley sugar sweets have remained the same ever since, with the original ancestral recipe kept secret through the centuries. Napoleon Bonaparte gobbled them up, Sarah Bernhardt would never walk onto the stage without first warming her voice with a barley sugar, while Aristide Briant, Jean Jaurès and André Mauriac all made pilgrimages to Moret-sur-Loing in honour of this special sweet.

SEINE-et-MARNE BEERS

Artisanal micro-breweries continue to bloom in Seine-et-Marne, with notably La Bellifontaine, the beer of Meaux and Provins, and the brews of the Brasserie Rabourdin, awarded no less than twenty medals at the prestigious Paris Agricultural Fair! Not to mention La Gâtine, with its subtle touch of honey, and La Pachamama beer of Fontainebleau inspired by the forest's fragrances... and its rock climbing!

the PROVINS ROSE

PROVINS

This rose has been the pride of Provins ever since the 19th century, renowned for its medicinal properties and used by the period's apothecaries for many of their remedies. Today, the flower is especially prized by confectioners, as well as for cosmetics. prisée en cosmétique.

The traditional Fête de la Niflette – Saint-Martin, every year on 11 November.

PROVINS

The niflette is a speciality pastry from Provins, in Seine-et-Marne. Sold by the delicious dozen, these flaky pastries are covered in a voluptuous pastry cream, either plain or orange-blossom flavoured. Niflettes were originally handed out to orphans outside cemeteries: the term niflette is derived from the Latin ne flete! or 'don't cry!'

Today, the pastry chefs of Provins continue the tradition, still preparing this confection every November.

LE PATTON
FONTAINEBLEAU

Set in a 19th-century bourgeois house, Le Patton combines authentic charm with contemporary touches. Chic yet relaxed, it celebrates local products — Fontainebleau fresh cheese as well as the Brie cheeses from Meaux, Nangis, and Melun. The menu evolves monthly, offering seasonal creations, specialities, and reimagined classics.

LA PAPOTE
BOURRON-MARLOTTE

In the heart of Bourron-Marlotte, near the Fontainebleau forest, this inn continues the convivial spirit once enjoyed by Monet, Renoir, and Théophile Gautier. In a modern, welcoming setting designed by Margaux Slowey, enjoy homemade dishes made with fresh, local, and seasonal ingredients, plus a pleasant terrace with a pétanque court. Two guest rooms upstairs let visitors extend their stay in this historic venue.

A seaside holiday vibe!

LA MARÉE JEANNE
SAINT-MAMMÈS

With a wide bay window overlooking the Seine quays, La Marée Jeanne evokes seaside holiday meals: oysters, fried smelts, risotto with coral and parmesan emulsion, or mussels in tarragon cream. For those less inclined toward seafood, duck breast, beef, or a selection of roasted vegetables provide a delicious alternative.

LA CROIX BLANCHE
DONNEMARIE-DONTILLY

At La Croix Blanche, the chef's philosophy guides every dish: "We don't aim to overdo it — we simply strive to get it right, with honesty and heart." The seasonal menu combines fish, meat, and fresh vegetables in a refined and generous traditional cuisine.
